DIXON PUBLIC LIBRARY POLICY MANUAL

Section 6: Loan and Return of Materials

A. PURPOSE

1. The Library's collection of materials is a shared resource purchased by the taxpayers of the City of Dixon. It is necessary to adopt a policy for the circulation of these materials in order to allow for their availability to the widest number of patrons.
2. When material is not returned in a timely fashion, other patrons are unable to access that material. When material is not returned, other patrons are inconvenienced and the library incurs additional expenses as new materials must be purchased and staff time must be used to locate, order, and catalog the replacement materials. The goal of this policy is to expedite the return or replacement of overdue materials and thereby reduce the inconvenience to other patrons and expense to taxpayers.

B. LOAN OF MATERIALS

1. Loan Limits Per Library Card: 20 Books; 2 DVDs; 5 Magazines; 4 CDs; 4 Audiobooks.
2. Loan Period: All items are checked out for 14 days. All items with the exception of DVDs may be renewed once. Items may be renewed by phone or online.
3. Certain materials in the collection are restricted from circulation due to their status as a reference item, their value, or their rarity only.

C. RETURN OF MATERIALS

1. The return of materials can be made by patrons at any time during the library's opening hours to either the adult or youth circulation desks. In addition, patrons may use the library's two book drops for the return of materials with the exception of audio-visual materials. The book drops are located (1: walk up only) outside the main front door of the library at the north-east corner of the building and (2: drive-up) at the north-west corner of the library building at the end of the drive-up lane at the edge of the parking lot.

D. NOTIFICATIONS OF OVERDUE STATUS

1. After the material is 14 days overdue, the library staff will attempt to make a courtesy call or e-mail to the patron. The staff member will remind the patron that the material is overdue and that fines are continuing to accrue. When appropriate, the staff member will offer to renew the material for the patron. If the patron cannot be contacted by phone, an overdue notice will be mailed.
2. After the material is 28 days overdue, a letter will be sent asking the patron to return the material or pay the replacement cost. (That amount will be included in the letter.) Borrowing privileges will be suspended if not previously suspended due to fine accrual.
3. A final letter will be sent periodically to patrons with long-overdue materials. This letter will advise the patron that further collection action may be taken if the materials are not returned or paid for.

E. FINES

1. Fines for return of materials in breach of this policy:
2. 15 cents per day for books and magazines;
3. $1.00 per day for all media (DVDs, CDs, Audiobooks);
4. $1.00 for media items dropped in the outside drop boxes;
5. 50 cents per day for overdue interlibrary loan materials;
6. $1.00 for unclaimed interlibrary loan materials.
7. When an adult patron's fines total $5.00, that patron's borrowing and computer use privileges will be suspended until the fine is paid in full.
8. When a child patron's fines total $2.00, that patron's borrowing and computer use privileges will be suspended until the fine is paid in full.

- D. Censorship must be exercised by the patron for himself alone. The Board of Directors and the Library Director cannot restrict the selection of the patron, and neither can the patron restrict the freedom of selection of other patrons. No material shall be removed from free circulation except by a court of competent jurisprudence. This statement refers to problems of censorship, and not to the normal practice of weeding the collection. Please refer to Appendix C for a copy of the complaint form, “Request for Reconsideration of Materials”.

DIXON PUBLIC LIBRARY POLICY MANUAL

Section 8: Gifts and Special Collections

The Dixon Public Library (DPL) welcomes gifts and books, recordings, and other materials that may be incorporated into its collections according to the standards used by the DPL in the selection of materials. It shall be understood by the donor that the DPL reserves the right to use or dispose of any such material according to its needs for collection management and available space.

Such gifts are accepted only if provision for the preservation, use, and keeping commensurate with their value are arranged with the Board of Directors and the Library Director, and are appropriate with the Mission and Goals of the DPL. Collections are accepted with the understanding that they may be integrated into the general collection with the only form of donor identification being a bookplate designation.

C. MONETARY GIFTS

These will be used in a way mutually acceptable to the DPL and the donor. Unless otherwise specified, gifts under $200 are usually spent on books or materials. Undesignated gifts over $200 may be used for furniture, equipment, or special projects.

D. PUBLICLY TRADED SECURITIES

DPL shall, as soon as practicable, place any gifted securities in a DPL investment account for safekeeping. After evaluation of the securities, a decision will be made as to whether the securities shall be sold. Under normal circumstances, the decision will be made as to whether the securities shall be sold. Under normal circumstances, DPL will sell the marketable securities given to it at the prevailing market value as soon as practical. Exceptions may be granted with the approval of the Board of Directors.

E. VALUATIONS

The DPL cannot assess the value of a donation of material, a specialized collection, an object of art, furniture or equipment. It will be the responsibility of the donor to list the material given and to determine the value of any donation independently, or with the aid of an appraiser. The DPL will issue a letter to the donor acknowledging the gift of any or all accepted donations of materials or monies.

DIXON PUBLIC LIBRARY POLICY MANUAL

Section 11: Unattended Children

A. PURPOSE

The Dixon Public Library is a valuable community resource of materials, information services, and programs. As a public institution, its doors are open to all regardless of origin, age, background, and views. Staff members are concerned when parents leave their young children alone or in the care of a slightly older sibling or friend. A slightly older child left in charge can be easily burdened by this responsibility. Sometimes children stay at the library for many hours or wait here after school until a parent picks them up. Often they become bored or restless which leads to disruptive behavior that interferes with the legitimate library business of other patrons and staff. While we try to create a safe, enjoyable library experience for our youngest patrons, the staff should not be placed in the position of supervising children who are too young to be unattended or whose behavior indicates that they have stayed at the library for too long a time. For the safety and protection of young children and for the benefit of all, the Dixon Public Library has developed the following rules.

B. CHILDREN, AGES 8 AND UNDER

These children must be accompanied by an adult caregiver. The library assumes no responsibility for an unattended child. The caregiver must stay with the child, unless the child is participating in a program. In that case, the caregiver must stay in the library.

C. SELF-SUPERVISED YOUTH, AGES 9 AND UP

These children are welcome to use the library as long as their behavior is in accordance with the behavior policy. Parents should not view the library as an alternative to daycare. Unlike a daycare facility, the library is not a closed environment. Staff cannot monitor everyone who enters, and all patrons are free to use any public area within the library. For safety's sake, parents should make sure that their children are sufficiently mature before allowing them to visit the library by themselves. Parents should be advised that if their children misbehave, they might be told to leave the library and the library grounds. Parents should further realize that, even in their absence, they are legally responsible for their children's behavior.

D. CLOSING TIME

Children must leave the library at closing time. The staff is not responsible for the safety of a child once the library has closed. If a child is at the library after closing time and attempts to contact the parent have failed, the Dixon Police Department will be called to take responsibility for the child.

DIXON PUBLIC LIBRARY POLICY MANUAL

Section 12: Displays and Exhibits

A. PUBLIC USE OF LIBRARY DISPLAY SPACE

1. Display space may be available for public use to promote the welfare or educational enlightenment of the community.
2. Arrangements for displays should be made in advance with the person responsible for the calendar of displays to insure continuity, variety, and seasonal appropriateness.
3. The usual time limit for displays is four weeks, but this can be extended or limited at the discretion of the Library Director.
4. Placement of displays or exhibits must be mutually agreeable to both the Library Director and the exhibitor, and should in no way interfere with the normal operation of the library.
5. All materials displayed will be given reasonable care and protection, but the Library does not assume responsibility for damage or loss, nor for the costs of insurance coverage.

3. Library staff may review scanned documents for copyright compliance.

B. PUBLIC ACCESS FAXING

1. The Dixon Public Library at the discretion of the Director of the Library or designees may accommodate a request of a Dixon Public Library Patron to send a document by facsimile transmittal.
2. By prior arrangement and at the discretion of the Director of the Library or designees, the Library may accommodate a request to receive documents via fax. A cover sheet specifying the name, address, and phone number of the intended receiver should accompany each document sent to the Library facsimile machine. In the absence of name, address and phone number of the intended recipient and prior arrangement with the library, no facsimile messages received will be forwarded. Fax messages will only be held at the Library for three days after receipt.
3. Any library patron wishing to take advantage of the fax services must be aware that library services are the library's first priority. Any public access faxing will be done at the convenience of the library staff.
4. To send or receive a fax costs $2.00 for the first page and $1.00 for each additional page within the United States, to defray telephone expense and staff time.
5. Any library patron who requests that a document be faxed or that the Library receive a faxed document should be aware that:
 - i. The library shall not be responsible in any way for the failure of the document to be received by the intended recipient, whether by reason of transmission error or otherwise;

2. Use by Minors

The Library affirms and acknowledges the responsibility of parents, legal guardians and adult caregivers (collectively, "Responsible Parties") to determine which Library materials and resources are appropriate for their own children. Responsible Parties are expected to guide their children in the use of the Internet and inform them about materials and resources to avoid. While the Library affirms and acknowledges the rights and responsibilities of Responsible Parties to determine their children's access to Library materials and resources, including those available through the Internet, the Library has the following policies and procedures designed to assist in the safe and effective use of the Library's computers and the Library's Wi-Fi by minors:

- i. Minors under age 14 are not allowed on the Library's computers in the Adult Department.

- vii. The Library's computers in the Children's Department will be visible to Library staff at the circulation desk.

E. DISCLAIMER

1. Patrons should be aware that the Internet, the Library's computers, and the Library's Wi-Fi are not secure media and that third parties may be able to obtain information regarding the activities of patrons. Patrons using the Library's computers and the Library's Wi-Fi for personal transactions, such as banking, do so at their own risk. The Library does not and cannot guarantee privacy and the security of any personal information when using the Library's computers and the Library's Wi-Fi. Further, to the extent required by law or as determined necessary for the proper operation of the Library, the Library reserves the right to release any information relating to the use of the Library's computers or the Library's Wi-Fi by patrons.
2. The Library does not and cannot guarantee the validity or accuracy of information found on the Internet. Library patrons are advised, as with all Library resources and materials, to exercise judgment and discretion when evaluating the usefulness and reliability of information found on the Internet.
3. Although many valuable sources of information are located throughout the Internet, some resources and websites contain material that some patrons may find offensive or inappropriate. There are websites that are inappropriate for use or viewing in a public setting. The Library does not and cannot control the content of resources and websites found on the Internet. As a result, patrons are solely responsible for evaluating the validity, acceptability and desirability of the information found. The Library is not responsible for Internet content, for changes in content of the sources to which the Library Web Page links or for the content of sources accessed through secondary links. The Library does have some technology protection measures in place on the Library's Wi-Fi. These protection measures, however, are imperfect and may restrict access to certain valid resources or reduce the effectiveness of the network for patrons while at the same time failing to block other invalid or inappropriate resources or websites. The connection speed to Internet resources may also be limited for the Library's Wi-Fi.

4. Any patron who uses their personal device on the Library's Wi-Fi is subject to the same filtering as the Library's computers. Unfortunately, there are other wireless networks and cellular connections within range of the Library, which are beyond the control of, and the restrictions imposed by, the Library. As a result, these non-Library connections are not subject to the same technology protection measures as those controlled by the Library. Patrons who are found to be accessing inappropriate information through these connections while on the Library premises are subject to the suspension or loss of Library privileges, among other penalties. For Responsible Parties, please be aware that your children could have access to inappropriate information when using an Internet connection other than the Library's computers or the Library's Wi-Fi, and the Library is not responsible for such access.
5. Although the Library utilizes virus-checking software, such software does not guarantee absolute protection from viruses. The Library is not responsible for any loss or damage to personal storage when downloading or to a patron's own device. Further, the Library is not responsible for any loss of data, damage, or liability that may occur from a patron's use of the Library's computers or the Library's Wi-Fi.
6. Violations of the Dixon Public Library Internet and Computer Use Policy may result in suspension or loss of privileges to use computer and Internet resources at the Library, among other penalties. Copies of the policy can be found at www.dixonpubliclibrary.org. Any illegal activity involving the use of the Library's computers or the Library's Wi-Fi, including the Internet, will be subject to prosecution by the appropriate authorities. In addition, by use of the Library's computers or the Library's Wi-Fi, patrons shall be deemed to agree to hold harmless, indemnify, and unconditionally reimburse the Library and the City of Dixon for any damage, liability, costs, claims, or expenses that the Library or the City of Dixon may incur that arises in any manner from any use or misuse of the Library's computers or the Library's Wi-Fi by a patron.

Library Bill of Rights

The American Library Association affirms that all libraries are forums for information and ideas, and that the following basic policies should guide their services.

- I. Books and other library resources should be provided for the interest, information, and enlightenment of all people of the community the library serves. Materials should not be excluded because of the origin, background, or views of those contributing to their creation.
- II. Libraries should provide materials and information presenting all points of view on current and historical issues. Materials should not be proscribed or removed because of partisan or doctrinal disapproval.
- III. Libraries should challenge censorship in the fulfillment of their responsibility to provide information and enlightenment.
- IV. Libraries should cooperate with all persons and groups concerned with resisting abridgment of free expression and free access to ideas.
- V. A person's right to use a library should not be denied or abridged because of origin, age, background, or views.
- VI. Libraries which make exhibit spaces and meeting rooms available to the public they serve should make such facilities available on an equitable basis, regardless of the beliefs or affiliations of individuals or groups requesting their use.

DIXON PUBLIC LIBRARY POLICY MANUAL

Appendix B

The Freedom to Read Statement

The freedom to read is essential to our democracy. It is continuously under attack. Private groups and public authorities in various parts of the country are working to remove or limit access to reading materials, to censor content in schools, to label "controversial" views, to distribute lists of "objectionable" books or authors, and to purge libraries. These actions apparently rise from a view that our national tradition of free expression is no longer valid; that censorship and suppression are needed to counter threats to safety or national security, as well as to avoid the subversion of politics and the corruption of morals. We, as individuals devoted to reading and as librarians and publishers responsible for disseminating ideas, wish to assert the public interest in the preservation of the freedom to read.

Most attempts at suppression rest on a denial of the fundamental premise of democracy: that the ordinary individual, by exercising critical judgment, will select the good and reject the bad. We trust Americans to recognize propaganda and misinformation, and to make their own decisions about what they read and believe. We do not believe they are prepared to sacrifice their heritage of a free press in order to be "protected" against what others think may be bad for them. We believe they still favor free enterprise in ideas and expression.

These efforts at suppression are related to a larger pattern of pressures being brought against education, the press, art and images, films, broadcast media, and the Internet. The problem is not only one of actual censorship. The shadow of fear cast by these pressures leads, we suspect, to an even larger voluntary curtailment of expression by those who seek to avoid controversy or unwelcome scrutiny by government officials.

Such pressure toward conformity is perhaps natural to a time of accelerated change. And yet suppression is never more dangerous than in such a time of social tension. Freedom has given the United States the elasticity to endure strain. Freedom keeps open the path of novel and creative solutions, and enables change to come by choice. Every silencing of a heresy, every enforcement of an orthodoxy, diminishes the toughness and resilience of our society and leaves it the less able to deal with controversy and difference.

Now as always in our history, reading is among our greatest freedoms. The freedom to read and write is almost the only means for making generally available ideas or manners of expression that can initially command only a small audience. The written word is the natural medium for the new idea and the untried voice from which come the original contributions to social growth. It is essential to the extended discussion that serious thought requires, and to the accumulation of knowledge and ideas into organized collections.

We believe that free communication is essential to the preservation of a free society and a creative culture. We believe that these pressures toward conformity present the danger of limiting the range and variety of inquiry and expression on which our democracy and our culture depend. We believe that every American community must jealously guard the freedom to publish and to circulate, in order to preserve its own freedom to read. We believe that publishers and librarians have a profound responsibility to give validity to that freedom to read by making it possible for the readers to choose freely from a variety of offerings.

The freedom to read is guaranteed by the Constitution. Those with faith in free people will stand firm on these constitutional guarantees of essential rights and will exercise the responsibilities that accompany these rights.

We therefore affirm these propositions:

1. It is in the public interest for publishers and librarians to make available the widest diversity of views and expressions, including those that are unorthodox, unpopular, or considered dangerous by the majority.
2. Creative thought is by definition new, and what is new is different. The bearer of every new thought is a rebel until that idea is refined and tested. Totalitarian systems attempt to maintain themselves in power by the ruthless suppression of any concept that challenges the established orthodoxy. The power of a democratic system to adapt to change is vastly strengthened by the freedom of its citizens to choose widely from among conflicting opinions offered freely to them. To stifle every nonconformist idea at birth would mark the end of the democratic process. Furthermore, only through the constant activity of weighing and selecting can the democratic mind attain the strength demanded by times like these. We need to know not only what we believe but why we believe it.
3. Publishers, librarians, and booksellers do not need to endorse every idea or presentation they make available. It would conflict with the public interest for them to establish their own political, moral, or aesthetic views as a standard for determining what should be published or circulated.
4. Publishers and librarians serve the educational process by helping to make available knowledge and ideas required for the growth of the mind and the increase of learning. They do not foster education by imposing as mentors the patterns of their own thought. The people should have the freedom to read and consider a broader range of ideas than those that may be held by any single librarian or publisher or government or church. It is wrong that what one can read should be confined to what another thinks proper.
5. It is contrary to the public interest for publishers or librarians to bar access to writings on the basis of the personal history or political affiliations of the author.
6. No art or literature can flourish if it is to be measured by the political views or private lives of its creators. No society of free people can flourish that draws up lists of writers to whom it will not listen, whatever they may have to say.

7. There is no place in our society for efforts to coerce the taste of others, to confine adults to the reading matter deemed suitable for adolescents, or to inhibit the efforts of writers to achieve artistic expression.
8. To some, much of modern expression is shocking. But is not much of life itself shocking? We cut off literature at the source if we prevent writers from dealing with the stuff of life. Parents and teachers have a responsibility to prepare the young to meet the diversity of experiences in life to which they will be exposed, as they have a responsibility to help them learn to think critically for themselves. These are affirmative responsibilities, not to be discharged simply by preventing them from reading works for which they are not yet prepared. In these matters values differ, and values cannot be legislated; nor can machinery be devised that will suit the demands of one group without limiting the freedom of others.
9. It is not in the public interest to force a reader to accept the prejudgment of a label characterizing any expression or its author as subversive or dangerous.
10. The ideal of labeling presupposes the existence of individuals or groups with wisdom to determine by authority what is good or bad for others. It presupposes that individuals must be directed in making up their minds about the ideas they examine. But Americans do not need others to do their thinking for them.
11. It is the responsibility of publishers and librarians, as guardians of the people's freedom to read, to contest encroachments upon that freedom by individuals or groups seeking to impose their own standards or tastes upon the community at large; and by the government whenever it seeks to reduce or deny public access to public information.
12. It is inevitable in the give and take of the democratic process that the political, the moral, or the aesthetic concepts of an individual or group will occasionally collide with those of another individual or group. In a free society individuals are free to determine for themselves what they wish to read, and each group is free to determine what it will recommend to its freely associated members. But no group has the right to take the law into its own hands, and to impose its own concept of politics or morality upon other members of a democratic society. Freedom is no freedom if it is accorded only to the accepted and the inoffensive. Further, democratic societies are more safe, free, and creative when the free flow of public information is not restricted by governmental prerogative or self - censorship.
13. It is the responsibility of publishers and librarians to give full meaning to the freedom to read by providing books that enrich the quality and diversity of thought and expression. By the exercise of this affirmative responsibility, they can demonstrate that the answer to a "bad" book is a good one, the answer to a "bad" idea is a good one.

DIXON PUBLIC LIBRARY POLICY MANUAL

14. The freedom to read is of little consequence when the reader cannot obtain matter fit for that reader's purpose. What is needed is not only the absence of restraint, but the positive provision of opportunity for the people to read the best that has been thought and said. Books are the major channel by which the intellectual inheritance is handed down, and the principal means of its testing and growth. The defense of the freedom to read requires of all publishers and librarians the utmost of their faculties, and deserves of all Americans the fullest of their support.

We state these propositions neither lightly nor as easy generalizations. We here stake out a lofty claim for the value of the written word. We do so because we believe that it is possessed of enormous variety and usefulness, worthy of cherishing and keeping free. We realize that the application of these propositions may mean the dissemination of ideas and manners of expression that are repugnant to many persons. We do not state these propositions in the comfortable belief that what people read is unimportant. We believe rather that what people read is deeply important; that ideas can be dangerous; but that the suppression of ideas is fatal to a democratic society. Freedom itself is a dangerous way of life, but it is ours.

This statement was originally issued in May of 1953 by the Westchester Conference of the American Library Association and the American Book Publishers Council, which in 1970 consolidated with the American Educational Publishers Institute to become the Association of American Publishers.

Adopted June 25, 1953, by the ALA Council and the AAP Freedom to Read Committee; amended January 28, 1972; January 16, 1991; July 12, 2000; June 30, 2004.
